

Take-Home Activity: Curating a Personal Collection

Now it's your turn to curate your own collection. Collections are often extensions of ourselves, our interests, and the time we live in. What do you collect? What's something you're interested in? Make a collage or draw your own collection. Be creative, use pictures from magazines, newspapers, or other materials. Consider including a title or theme, a list of objects, why you chose them, and what your collection says about you. Use the space below, another piece of paper, or go bigger and use cardboard or poster board. When you're done you can share your collection with others!
